

Brother Frank

BAND STORY

"Songs are like little tiny slivers of our lives, and as musicians we're always watching for those deeper moments; you have to, because it's not the surface that's interesting, it's not the surface that changes people." Frank Grubbs Frank started writing in 2001 after returning from university where he studied classical piano performance. Influenced by a wide range of musicians and styles, his music is at once eclectic and cohesive; a thread of common experience that runs through everything he writes. Including elements of faith and American experience his lyrics touch the very corners human existence. Frank was born into a family of deep faith, his father a pastor and church planter in the mid-east. He grew up around hymns and gospel music and often heard folk and 60s rock albums around the house. On a Sunday afternoon at the age of five his parents found him plinking out the hymn-tunes of that mornings service on a toy piano. They knew immediately that there was talent in this kid. Years later, those early influences are easily spotted in the unique sound Frank creates as he sits at the piano or cradles a guitar. Growing artistically and as a writer over the past several years, Frank has compiled a wealth of well crafted songs. In November 2004 he independently released Brother Frank, which samples his warm but intricate acoustic sound. While he thoroughly enjoys the recording process, it is in live performance that he really comes alive. One only has to see him once to get a taste of the passion he has for life, music, and the God that gave him both. "
