St Louis' FLAME spreads gospel through website

NAT'L CHRISTIAN HIP HOP ARTIST

FLAME SPREADS GOSPEL THROUGH WEBSITE

FLAME314.COM : Discipling From A Distance is launched

ATLANTA, November 13 - - National Gospel Rap recording artist, FLAME, is welcoming fans, believers and non-believers, alike, to visit his webpage. Stepping out of the box with a different take on an artist website, www.FLAME314.com offers sermons, devotionals and tools from FLAME' s collection.

FLAME314.com was "designed to disciple from a distance," says FLAME of his site. "So often I realize that a CD and a concert is not enough to deposit into my audience the amount of information that is necessary... My goal for this website is to humbly make mention of historic Christian truths and perspectives that may not otherwise be taught."

From devotions posted by labelmates Lecrae and the Ambassador to links directing you to a wealth of other online resources, FLAME' s website, to say the least, is not focused on him as an artist, but on ministry. In addition, the site opens the door for two way communication - allowing visitors to post their testimonies, send their favorite artist information about themselves and their personal mission statement. Fans can also choose to receive the latest from Flame via email.

Born in St. Louis, FLAME a.k.a. Marcus Williams – Gray preaches nationally at churches, events and conferences. Involved in ministry for more than 10 years, the Dove Award nominee and 2008 Holy Hip Hop Honoree is currently completing his degree in Biblical Studies at Boyce College in Louisville. His third album 'Our World Fallen' is receiving many raves and reviews from fans and critics who can not wait for the highly anticipated counterpart of 'Fallen' ... 'Our World Redeemed.'
